

1,000th Mercedes-Benz SLR McLaren Produced

{mosgoogle right} In May of 2004 the world was introduced to the Mercedes-Benz SLR McLaren, a $452,750 supercar the majority of the world's population can only dream about. Now, over one-and-a-half years later and roughly $450,000,000, the exclusive model is celebrating a new milestone. It turns out, the 1,000th SLR recently rolled of the production line at the McLaren Technology Center in Woking, England. The handbuilt SLR is designated for a customer in Japan, features black exterior paint and is equipped with the unique trademark carbon bodyshell only SLR owners can boast of.
