

BRABUS Unveils 22-Inch Rims And Aluminum Sport Fenders For Mercedes-Benz S-Class And CL-Class

{mosgoogle right}Let me speak candidly for a moment when I say there are some things in life that simply are better when they're bigger. A few things that appropriately fall under this adage include flat-screen televisions (for men), diamonds (for women), and the irrefutable proof that creationism is true and a Designer does exit " the posterior of one Jennifer Lopez (for me). In the world of automobiles, size is equally as important, no more so than in the highly rapped out about realm of rims. Just ask BRABUS, who recently took three of their most popular Monoblock designs and super sized them, upgrading each to include 22-inch variants. The Monoblock Magnums®, as they should be but unfortunately aren't known as, can be fitted on either the S-Class or CL-Class, and come in the size of 10Jx22. Throw in some high performance 275/25 ZR 22 tires on the front combined with a pair of 295/25 ZR 22 tires in the back, and you've got a combo more than suitable for an airing on the next episode of MTV Cribs.
