

Spy Photos Of Revised Mercedes-Benz S63 AMG And GLK Models Emerge

{mosgoogle right}Spy photos of forthcoming Mercedes models continue to pour in, as the industrious gentlemen of GlobalMotors.net have captured pictures of not one but two yet to be unveiled models: a revised Mercedes-Benz S63 AMG and a GLK featuring LED daytime running lights – one that in all probability is a hybrid variant of the new SUV.

On the S63 AMG, changes are said to be largely cosmetic, with a revised rear bumper and taillights, new side mirrors, a slightly altered grille and LED daytime lamps some of the areas the new model will differ from the outgoing variant (for comparison, here's some photos of the current S63 AMG). Engines in both the S63 AMG and S65 AMG are expected to remain unchanged, although fuel efficiency is said to be improving thanks to the use of lighter materials, direct-injection technology and engine stop-start system.
