

The Mercedes-Benz Concept Ocean Drive Makes Its Debut At The Detroit Auto Show

{mosgoogle right}Welcome back ladies and gentlemen; I hope you all had a fantastic weekend. If you're a regular reader of our site, you're no doubt aware that today kicked off the Detroit Auto Show, and with it the world premier of a Mercedes model that after being rumored to be in development for some time, was finally revealed several weeks ago. That model is the Mercedes Concept Ocean Drive, a convertible concept based on the new Mercedes S600 which aims to revive the brand's four-door luxury convertible tradition. To celebrate its world premier, Mercedes today has published an in-depth press release outlining the Concept Ocean Drive, detailing everything from its design characteristics to its equipment and technical specifications. Of course, there's also a wealth of new photos depicting the concept as well, offering a superb look at what is an undoubtedly unique vehicle.

Read more